Sandman Glass & Gift Newsletter – March – “When Irish Eyes are Smiling”

“When Irish Eyes are Smiling!”

Well if you are planning on kissing a blarney stone or dishing up a corned beef & cabbage dinner for two....

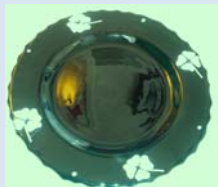

This beautiful Irish green plate will enhance your dinner table and may bring you luck at the same time. The Little Lucky Shamrocks line the outer edge and this 10” plate allows you plenty of room to place your favorite Irish meal or stew in the center.

One customer ordered a smaller size plate to give to a special relative who had a birthday on the same date.

We didn't stop there...we made some bookmarks, magnets and other Green ideas to celebrate the Irish in all of us!

Why not? You may get pinched if you do not have a little green around! Best of luck!

Dreams Never Stop

Every day, I wake up around 5:30 am and immediately start creating new ideas in my studio. It seems that in my dream-like state, overnight, I am able to re-create beautiful pieces. In my mind, after I have originally seen flowers, birds or other things, I shape them into the glass.

Take this lantern as an example. The idea for the lantern was created after watching, for a couple of years, these wonderful yellow birds flying into my back yard.

There were

15 birds which looked like canaries. They would hide in my pear tree and blend in with the golden colored leaves. As if on cue, they would fly to a small waterfall I built to sip a drink from the flowing water at the falls edge. This would happen at about 3 – 5 pm every day when the sun was fully beating down.

I was always amazed by their sense of timing and complete accuracy in flying to the water falls to take their drinks. So, I did this lantern... “For the Birds.”

Meet Mickie Howe

This year has been full of meeting new people and getting to see some great creative work. One of which is Mickie Howe.

Mickie Howe, otherwise known as “MIX” and her husband, Steve, moved to Idaho from New Mexico in 2005. She says she has always had a love for the arts and crafts world! Mickie participated in arts and crafts shows in New Mexico for several years. She specialized in wooden hand-crafted items but later took classes in pottery at the University of New Mexico/Los Alamos.

Additionally, she developed her skills in the art of stained glass and started making these beautiful pendants and other types of creations:

She discovered a love for not only the play of light through glass, but the beauty of colored glass as art by itself.

Happy Saint Patricks Day! One day only!

Other New Items

YES! I am so excited to be creating new large wind chimes again. So far, these two are the latest ideas:

But that not all that is new...here are my new "Simply Stated" line of plates. They are for people that just like the color of stained glass, nothing more. These fit well into everyone's décor so they make the perfect gift item, especially for brides or the person who has everything.

Classes now Forming

I am now beginning to see that others want to learn the art of stained glass and fusing glass. If you are interested in classes please call me at (208) 521-0295. We will start out slowly with these as space is limited, so if you are interested, please contact me as soon as possible.
